3. (U) According to AAG Mahbashi, eight of the fifteen appellees presented oral arguments to a three-judge panel in the Court of Appeals on 12/04. Mahbashi noted that the eight appellees, arguments were the same. They presented confessions to their crimes, which were also written, signed and sealed with a fingerprint, coupled with a plea for mercy and request for a reduction in sentence. All appellees also assured the court that they would not be repeat offenders. The prosecution retorted in all eight cases, asking that the court raise the sentences to the maximum the law allows. (ref. b). Mahbashi anticipates that the panel will likely uphold the sentences as they stand. End Note.

4. (U) The eight Appellees who presented oral arguments on 12/04 were:

-- Omer Sa'id Jarallah (ten years for the 2002 attack on the MV Limburg)

-- Mohammed al-Ammari (ten years for the 2002 attack on the MV Limburg)

-- Fawzi al-Wajih (ten years for the 2002 attack on the MV Limburg)

-- Ibrahim al-Howeid (five years for plotting to attack foreign embassies in Sana'a and for planning to kill the U.S. Ambassador to Yemen)

-- Qassem al-Rayni (five years for plotting to attack foreign embassies in Sana'a and for planning to kill the U.S. Ambassador to Yemen)

-- Abdul-Ghani Dhayfan (five years for plotting to attack foreign embassies in Sana'a and for planning to kill the U.S. Ambassador to Yemen)

-- Mohammed Ali al-Daylami (five years for plotting to attack foreign embassies in Sana'a and for planning to kill the U.S. Ambassador to Yemen)

-- Kahled al-Juloab (three years for forging documents)

5. (C) The AAG presented copies of the confessions, which were read verbatim to the panel, but would not hand over copies to Legatt, promising to do so only after all the appeals were completed. He said the confessions were detailed and "completely" in line with the crimes that each Appellee was charged with. The AAG affirmed that he was pleased with the outcome of the case, particularly after the 12/04 hearing, adding that he will make every effort to see that the court sentence the remaining five defendants to the maximum sentence allowed by Yemeni law.

6. (C) Both media and family members were present during the Appeals Court session. Mahbashi described the feeling in the court chamber as subdued and speculated that the family members present, who created substantial commotion during the initial trial, now realized that the charges against the defendants were true. (Ref A). No date has been set for the remaining appellees but Mahbashi assured that the process will move along and promised to keep Post updated.
